Third of Troubles killings still being probed

Former Church of Ireland Primate Lord Robin Eames told The Detail that dealing with legacy cases is still a complex issue. As co-chair of the Consultative Group on the Past, Lord Eames and former Policing Board vice chairman Denis Bradley published a report in 2009 examining how the legacy of the ...

Justin McAleese: 'You'll get people saying it's nepotism but this is Not great. In a bid to rectify this, Fianna Fáil is shaking things up and changing tack. It needs someone young, and tenacious. A fresh face who is both familiar but not over-exposed. And so it has appointed Justin McAleese – the son of former President Mary – as constituency representative for the area.

Former Ulster star Neil Best hits out at club after rape trial and calls for return of players

A former Ulster Rugby star has criticised the club for its handling of the fallout from the Paddy Jackson and Stuart Olding rape trial - but said keeping them on would be the "right" thing. Neil Best, who played for Ulster from 2002 to 2008, said an apology from the club was overdue, adding that Ulster should "shoulder a shared

Bishop and senior clergyman join calls for Church of England to lose equalities exemptions

The Church of England should lose its protections under the Equalities Act that allow it to discriminate against people on the basis of their sexuality, a bishop and senior clergyman have said today. Paul Bayes, the bishop of Liverpool, and David Ison, the dean of St Paul's Cathedral, both backed Jeremy Pemberton, a gay priest who was blocked from being a hospital chaplain after marrying his partner. They are supporting the Ozanne Foundation, a charity launched on Monday campaigning against discrimination within religious institutions.
