Reports that the Archbishop of Canterbury Justin Welby has said US president Donald Trump and his team could tip the scales in favour of Israeli-Palestinian peace prospects when they arrive in Jerusalem in less than two weeks time. Archbishop Justin, speaking on the penultimate day of his 12- day trip to the Holy Land, said: “We know from history in this region that determined leadership by the president of the United States, together with patient working by lots of other people in the background, often unknown, can tip things very, very decisively.”

The BBC carries a video interview with Archbishop Justin conducted by correspondent Yolande Knell.
